MOORS DEMAND SURRENDER OF TANGIER CITY

Situation at Casablanca
Critical, But General
Drude Is Confident.

PARIS, Aug. 17.—Despatches from Tangier, received today, report that the situation throughout Morocco is still critical. While matters have quieted down somewhat, it is known that should the troops be withdrawn the withdrawal would at once be followed by a general massacre of all Christians and Hebrews. The hostile natives camped on the outskirts of Casablanca last night sent a message to General Drude, commanding the French forces, demanding the immediate surrender of the town. The message said further that unless the general surrendered, his troops would be exterminated, the town looted and burned, and all Europeans put to death, by a great force of Arabs.

General Drude sent back no reply, as he considers his position impregnable, the newly arrived Spanish forces bringing the total number of men up to 3,500. In an interview, General Drude said:

Drude Says He's Master.
"I am master of all the heights, consequently the tribesmen are unable to approach the town by any route without being detected at a distance of 2,000 yards. I have eighteen guns already in position, and they command every point of the horizon. Should such an unlikely thing happen as the French camp being attacked on all sides at once we would still have nothing to fear. I do not believe we will have to deal with another serious attack."

That the tribesmen are planning an attack is the opinion of many refugees arriving at Casablanca. They say the natives are being called together for a desperate attack on the French and Spanish. If they are beaten they will give up the struggle.

Jewish refugees from the Kabyle camp have come into Casablanca in a state of extreme wretchedness. They report horrible cruelties practiced upon Jewish and other residents of Casablanca who were carried away.

Latest Developments In Telegraph Strike

World-wide strike impending because of the co-operation of British telegraphers and socialist operators of Europe.

Order out to "silence all cable stations in the United States" by Monday.

Number of men out, 15,500; number at work under contract, 2,000.

Demands to date: For telegraphers—Eight-hour day; 15 per cent increase; companies to furnish typewriters; equal pay for men and women. For relay men in long-distance telephone service—Eight-hour day, 15 to 25 per cent increase.

Strike begun in Los Angeles, Wednesday, August 7, extended by a walkout in Chicago, Thursday, August 8, and throughout the country Friday and Saturday.

Call for general strike was issued at 2 a. m., Friday, August 16.

CHICAGO, Aug. 17.—A world-wide telegraphers' strike is imminent.

It developed late tonight that the officers of the Commercial Telegraphers' Union have been carrying on negotiations for more than a year with the Telegraph Clerks' Association of England with a view of bringing about a working alliance between the American and English telegraphers.

They have so far succeeded that sympathetic action in the strike is assured.

Any attempts to man the American cable stations at Canso, North Sidney, and Heart's Content, N. S., will result in the refusal of English operators to handle cablegrams from America.

Should the British end of the trans-Atlantic cables be manned by non-union men, the action would be sure to precipitate a general strike of all telegraphers in England. That the strike would immediately extend to the continent and spread over the entire world is certain.

Stuttgart Conference Interested.

A. M. Simons, editor of the Chicago Daily Socialist, the American delegate to the International Socialists' convention, which is practically one of labor organization, the question of establishing a defensive and offensive alliance between the telegraphers of America, Europe, Australia, and the Orient.

Co-operation Assured, Says Small.

President S. J. Small, of the Commercial Telegraphers of America, said: "We are assured of the co-operation of every socialist operator of Europe. They consist of 99 per cent of the telegraphers of the Continent and three-fourths of the operators of the British colonies. When non-union men begin to work during the strike they will refuse all messages from America. This strike will demonstrate to the world that labor interests are fully awake to the necessity for united action."

Concerning the domestic situation, President Small said:

"The real struggle will begin Monday."

COL. TUCKER TO BRING SUIT FOR DIVORCE

Cruelty Expected to Be Charge Against Gen.
John A. Logan's Daughter.

CHICAGO, Aug. 17.—Lieut. Col. William F. Tucker, of the pay corps of the United States army, will sue for a divorce from his wife, Mrs. Dolly Logan Tucker, daughter of the late Gen. John A. Logan. That is, unless Mrs. Tucker achieves a coup by racing to the courts ahead of the gallant officer.

If Mrs. Tucker adopts that course, she will not have a hard run, as Colonel Tucker has gone a fishing and is not expected back at his Elm-hurst country home for ten days.

The announcement that the officer and not the wife would institute proceedings has caused a furor here in army and society circles. Although the court of inquiry removed the bar sinister cast upon Colonel Tucker by his wife, it was predicted that the woman and not the man would take the initiative to bring about a perpetual separation.

Tucker Long Contemplated Move.

Colonel Tucker is said to have contemplated taking drastic action long before now, but either on account of his gallantry or the tactics of the army department at Washington, he has decided to permit Mrs. Tucker to make the first move. As yet he has never received an official report of the findings of the court of inquiry. A brief paragraph in the Army and Navy Journal is the only message he had received of his vindication.

The same mystery which has marked the separation from its inception shrouds the question, "What will be the grounds for divorce?"

CONDUIT ROAD CONTROL PUT UP TO U. S. COURTS

Taft Sides With Bonaparte, and Garrett Is Still Rebellious.

The mooted question as to the jurisdiction over the Conduit road and the autostats who ride thereupon is, according to a decision reached by Secretary of War Taft yesterday afternoon, to be settled at once through a test case to be submitted to the United States courts by District Attorney Rose, of Baltimore. The Secretary announced this decision after a lengthy conference with Major Spencer Cosby, in charge of the Washington aqueduct, and State Attorney Robert Peter, of Rockville, representing the State of Maryland and Mayor Garrett.

The Secretary, at the conclusion of the conference, had the following to say regarding the attitude of the Glen Echo authorities:

"And you can say for me, that the lubrications of a minor official imbued with sensationalism, are not going to be allowed to disturb the dealings of this department with the State of Maryland."

Called Forth by Interviews.

This was in connection with the interview called forth by interviews, that have been given out by Mayor Garrett in which he has hurled defiance at the legal views recently expressed by the Attorney General denying Glen Echo had any jurisdiction over the road, expressed the opinion that Secretary Taft would not agree with Mr. Bonaparte, and intimated that similar defiance (Continued on Page 11, Second Section)

FIGHT MONEY READY

Bricklayers Now Have
$25,000, Says
Preece.

Open Shop Policy Battle Has Started.

Employers' Association May Lose Men Brought Here.

"Twenty-five thousand dollars, the first half of $50,000 voted by the executive board of the Bricklayers and Masons' International Union of America to fight the open shop policy of the Employers' Association of Washington has been received by me," said First Vice President Thomas R. Preece, of the former organization, who is in the city to direct personally the battle that is now on between capital and labor in the District, last night.

"This money is to be used as a defense as well as an aggressive fund to fight the effort of the local master builders, who seek to sweep organized labor from this section of the country," continued Mr. Preece. "That we will bring these master builders and their Employers' Association to terms is absolutely certain. It may take time to do the work, but we will do it completely and convince these men who would fill their shops and buildings with non-union labor, imported from abroad, in an effort to drive an army of good citizens from this community, who have contributed of their brain, brawn, and means to build up the city, and supplant them with a floating, unreliable, incompetent element that is composed of neither good workman nor citizens."

Will Furnish Transportation.

"We are in a position financially and otherwise to handle all the non-union bricklayers that come to this city either by importation of the Employers' Association or who come here of their own volition and at their expense. We will supply them with transportation, as we are doing, and see to it that these workmen so imported in the building trades are kept away from this city. Monday we will commence this work systematically, and we are now ready to start homeward at least half of the men who have been brought here by the Employers' Association. The claim of the Employers' Association that they have all the men they need is an empty one, and we will show them the first of the week that we will take from them very many of those that they already have."

"When the first $25,000 is used there is another $25,000 ready for us. This money comes out of the general fund of our union. When the $50,000 is consumed—and we will use it liberally, defensively and aggressively, a 5-cent-a-week assessment will be made on our members which will bring to us weekly a sum of money that will meet all our requirements."

Weekly Assessment.

"There are 1,250,000 men behind this fight in Washington against the open shop, all of whom are subject to a weekly assessment of from 5 cents to a dollar a week, and if unlimited finances, cool, determined heads and clean, aggressive business methods count for anything, we will defy the local master builders and their allies, the Manufacturers' Association, reported to have set aside $1,000,000 or more to establish the open shop. We will make them spend that, and more. The fact that this fight is not a little affair—it is for the closed shop, the vital principle of all organized labor, and we have the assurance of that great body, the American Federation of Labor, that it is with us and will see us to a finish. We mean to win this fight and make it an object lesson for all time to come to all sections of the country who seek to wipe us off the map and ram the open shop down our throats."

This startling declaration was made last night by Vice President Preece. He said that the building trades had decided to give publicity to all their moves which would be made from day to day, abandoning the old policy of keeping their actions secret. He said that the business agents and the international officers of the building trades in the city would meet hereafter in the afternoon, there being no

Intense Interest in the Hearing Before
German Court.

The Times publishes today the first complete story of the trial of Carl Hau, charged with having killed his mother-in-law, Frau Molitor.

The story of the trial as published by the London Morning Telegraph, which has just reached Washington, is given.

The Hau murder trial will go down in history as one of the most sensational and peculiar in the records of the German courts. Its all-compelling mystery has an added interest for Washington, where Hau lived for some time and was highly respected, both for his quiet demeanor and his brilliant intellect.

As professor of Roman law at the George Washington University, he won the admiration of his colleagues.

Facts concerning the early life of Hau, as brought out in the trial, will come as a surprise and shock to the able young jurist's friends here.

Among the many startling phases of the trial were:

Hau's utter indifference to his own fate.

Evidence of his profligacy in his youth.

The remarkable will of his wife in which Hau is accused of having lived a wild life.

Hau's flimsy explanation of why he wore a mask.

His confession of his love for his wife's sister.

His boastful manner about his conquests of hearts in his student days.

The fact that his wife had endeavored to commit suicide shortly after her elopement with Hau, who had married at the age of nineteen.

Testimony of mental experts to the effect that Hau was affected by an "excess of sanity" rather than insanity.

STORY OF THE TRIAL.

Many features of the Carl Hau trial were sensational in the extreme. The indifferent demeanor of the accused throughout the whole five days that the trial lasted was a never-ending source of surprise, both to the judge and Hau's attorney. Repeatedly the judge would plead with the prisoner to break his silence and give some explanation of circumstances that seemed most damaging, but, with stoical indifference, the prisoner would answer, "As to that, I have nothing to say."

The proceedings attracted an unprecedented amount of attention not only because of the character of the crime, but because of the high social standing of the parties concerned and the striking personality of the accused, who is little more than a youth, being twenty-six years old, and who was already well launched on what gave promise of an exceptionally brilliant career.

Court Room Was Crowded.

The courtroom was crowded to its capacity on the morning that the case was to open. Prominent in the throng were the two daughter of Frau Molitor, the murdered woman, Dr. Dietz, counsel for the defense, and Prof. Aschaffenburg, of Cologne, who had come to give expert testimony on the mental condition of the prisoner. A gruesome object that continually caught the gaze of every spectator was the heart of the murdered woman in the center of the room on a slight elevation, preserved in a bottle of spirits.

As is customary, the trial opened with the presiding judge asking the prisoner
